Accessible Fall Getaways

Fall is here and in Oklahoma, one of the best ways to spend the cooler season is at a beautiful cabin. Travel ok has prepared a list of ADA accessible campgrounds and cabins throughout our gorgeous state. Read the list here and plan a trip for the whole family. If you are looking for a unique attraction while you enjoy your cabin, check out this list here and here, for some ideas.

All-Abilities Fall Festival and Trunk or Treat Exhibition Show

October 18th, the Oklahoma Foundation for the Disabled is holding an inclusive All-Abilities Fall festival and Trunk or Treat with carnival games, live DJ and local artist, costume contest, and exhibitions from the OKC Fire Department and OK Able Tech! This event is free to the public, but additional tickets and snacks are available for purchase. For more information, view the Facebook event page here, or check out their website here.

The Disability Visibility Project

Created by Alice Wong, self-advocate and artist, The Disability Visibility Project is an online community consisting of various multimedia projects to promote "disability media and culture." The organization has videos, podcasts, and photos on their website here. On October 15th, they released a collection of essays and memoirs called Resistance and Hope: Essays by Disabled People. The stories are written by self-advocates and available to order here.

CLL SPOTLIGHT

Wanda Felty, Community Leadership & Advocacy Coordinator, has been coordinating and hosting the quarterly DDS Waiting List meetings for more than 13 years. The Waiting List meetings are a place where families and self-advocates affected by the long wait for DDS wavier services can come hear from DHS leadership, including DDS's director. Representatives from other state agencies attend as well. For the past nine years, Wanda has invited legislators to attend and learn directly from families how the long wait is affecting their family. The waiting list currently has 7,586 individuals, with a wait longer than 12 years. Over the last 18 years, the list has grown by 5,000 members. Through the advocacy of the Waiting List Meeting, and through partnerships with parent leaders from the Oklahoma Developmental Disabilities Council and the Oklahoma Disability Law Center, the cause has gained the attention of state legislators. A bipartisan group has created the Waiting List Caucus. Support from the Waiting List Caucus helped facilitate the largest one time funding appropriated to work the waiting list.. To view their website click here and to view the group's Facebook click here, or search Waiting in Oklahoma. The September meeting was recorded on Facebook Live and has been viewed thousands of times. To view the video, click here.
